They claim to have eviden a of 1500 illegal votes having been east at the election, while Harrison's majority was only 395. This can be proved, however, only by the use of the city poll-books which have been in the bands of the gang officials since election, and which the republicans have not yet seen. The gamblers are quite generally obeying Mayor Harrison's closing order, though the papers complain that this order is any a comtine to the face and rofflette bouses, and does not touch the power rooms, which faith is placed in the promise, and the are the most numerous and popular.

ters, says, that Couch, the boomer leader, is correct in saying that the Oklahoma lands are occupied by cattle men. This, however, is not news. Chief Bushyhead of the Cherokee nation estimated, when in Washington some months ago, that cattle companies had nearly 400,000 head of cattle in the territory. The cattle men have leased the land of the ladians for pasturage. Mr. Dawes finds, it is reported, that the Creeks are willing to have Oklahoma thrown open to settlement provided the government will buy the "Cherokee strip," lying between Oklahoma and Kansas and containing some 6,000,000 neres; and the senator "seemed to be of the opinion" that the government had better do it, open the country, dispose of the vexed question and in so doing advance toward "the eventual wiping out of the territory." It may be safely presumed that Mr. Dawes dul not commit himself to all this. But that the government should settle the question of Oklahoma, determining speedily whether it ought to be thrown open or not, there is no question. Meanwhile Couch and the rest of the boomers have no business there, and cannot be allowed to erter the disputed country. The appearance in western papers of advertisements leading ill-informed read ers to believe that "millions of acres" are waiting "for homestead and preemption" indicates the lawless temper with which this raiding has been and is prepared and carried on. The Indians have exaggerated notions of the value of the land; wanting $5 or $6 the acre,

THE death of Charles T. Howard, the head of the Louisiana lottery, may possibly have a good effect upon the pelities of that state, which has been practically ruled by that organized scoundrelism for the 17 years since Howard, as agent of the Kentucky lottery, bribed a corrupt Legislature to establish it. When he had got his grant, he mitde himself principal instead of agent, arsociated other men of his stripe in the direction, and has divided some four or five million dollars a year among the directors and stockholders, the former taking 50 per cent of the profits besides sharing in the stockholders' moiety. This gigantic gambling concern has run the Legislature, managed governors, kad mayors for its ticket agents and two prominent generals of the confederate army to turn its wheel and announce its prizes. Its influence has immeasurably injured the state and has east its blight over the great exposition. It compelled the constitutional convention of 1869 to put a certificate of its legal existence into the new constitution it adopted, and thus it is intreached the highest guarantee of the state.
